

Diabetes & Pregnancy PSP

Research Priorities in Diabetes and Pregnancy

A James Lind Alliance Priority Setting Partnership

Have your say!

A priority setting partnership (PSP) in diabetes and pregnancy research has been established by the University of Oxford, the James Lind Alliance, Diabetes UK, JDRF and DRWF.

The PSP will work to identify the unanswered questions and uncertainties about health care and wellbeing in diabetes and pregnancy from the perspective of women, their support networks (families, partners, friends) and healthcare professionals (HCPs).

Our aim is to produce a top ten list of priority questions that women, their support networks, and HCPs agree are the most important for research to address

Funded by:

SCA/PP/12/19

Diabetes Research & Wellness Foundation

John Fell Fund & Nuffield Department of POPULATION HEALTH
Medical Sciences Division

Questions? Want to be involved? Contact us!

JLAPSP@npeu.ox.ac.uk

www.npeu.ox.ac.uk/jla-psp

01865 289 757

@NPEU_JLAPSP

